DREAMLAND ADVENTURES

Judge Owl's Secrets By DADDY

The Sea-Gull Princess DEGGY couldn't go to sleep, although she had gone to bed at the usual time. Neither could Billy, who was vistime next door. Perhaps they were thinking too much of the good times they were going to have next day.

"Hoo!" said Judge Owl, peeking at Pegy from a tree outside her window. Hoe!" he peeked the other way at "Hoo! Hoo! Aren't you children

"No," replied Peggy. "Please tell us a story to put us to sleep." "That I will do right gladly. Til tell you one of my secret stories. It is you one of in section attended it is settled down to tell his story while Peggy and Billy listened eagerly. "May-be you have seen how gulls follow a

"yes I've seen them." broke in Peggy.
"yes I've seen them." broke in Peggy.
"Once I went on a voyage and the gulis followed the boat all day long, and I guess all night, too, for when I got up next morning they were flying right where they had been when I said good-beneath the waves.

"The message of the mermaid made Princess Sea Gull sad, as she loved her flock and wanted to stay a carefree sea gull.

"But in the morning when she heard her flock's cries for food, she made up her mind to sacrifice herself for the other gulls. So she flew to the ship that came as the mormaid said, and when she saw the handsome young captain on the deck, she flew to him and kissed him on the lips.

"The captain was astonished to have him on the lips.

"The captain was astonished to have a gull kiss him, and he was more than astonished when the gull turned into a beautiful young maiden. He fell deeply in love with her at very first sight.

"Be my bride!" he cried. Tes. answered Princess Sen Gull, who had fallen in love with the handsome captain as quickly as he had fallen in love with her. But first, feed my sea gulls. as quickly as he had tallen in love with her. But first, feed my sea gulls."

"This the kind and handsome young captain was most glad to do. He had the cook scatter food on the waves, and the gulls ate it and became strong snough to follow the ship. And they followed it to shore, feasting on the way, for morning, noon and night the captain had the cook cast food upon the waters.

which had the cook cast food upon the waters.

"Now the gulls didn't know what had become of their princess, and while she married the young captain and was happy over after, they kept up the search for her, following ship after ship, and picking up the scraps the cooks throw overboard.

"And tomorrow I will tell you the story of the grateful gull," horted Judge Owl, and he flew away for Peggy and Billy had fallen fast asleep.

To Discuss Greek Situation "The Political Situation in Greece." with special reference to Constantine and Venizelos, will be discussed at the meetings of the Contemporary Club in the Bellevue-Stratford tonight. The peakers will be Herbert Adams Gibbons and Paxton Hibben.

JADE GREEN TRIMS THIS COOLIE JACKET The Governor's Daughter

Making More Money

When Miss Katherine Ballou, daughter of the governor of Mississippl, calmily made the announcement one day that she was "going into business," she discovered that she could hardly have amazed those around her more if she had declared that she was going to head an expedition in search of the missing link or that she had made up her mind to devote the remainder of her life to a study of leprosy. While Miss Ballou's friends agreed that it was perfectly all right for a woman to earn her own living if she had to the idea that she should be financially independent without the urge of this necessity struck them as being rather incongruous.

"There's no reason in the world for

"There's no reason in the world for you to 'go to work,' as you call it," they told her. "Besides, you're the governor's daughter, you know."

"That's all the greater reason why I should earn my living," was Miss Ballou's rejoinder. "I believe that every woman ought to make her own way as far as she can, whether it is absolutely essential or not. In the first place, it gives you something to do and, in addition, it is a material safeguard against anything which may happen in the future, a form of insurance against possible disaster."

"But what type of work are you go ing to take up? What can you do?" ing to take up? What can you do?"
"Something in which I, and every other southerner have been interested all my life. I'm going to specialize on cotton"—and, within the month, the news reached Miss Ballou's home town that she had secured a place in a cotton broker's office in Tennessee, preferring to go away from home so that she might not be "hampered"—as she put it—by influence in her favor. She began at the bottom, but her knowledge of all the details connected with cotton made her rapid advance a certainty, and it wasn't many months before she had an office of her own where she put through big deals in cottonseed.
